Guatemala Affairs.

CITY OF MEXICO (via Galveston), June 6.—Advices are received here to the effect that all members of the Guatemalan Cabinet, with the exception of Anguino, Minister of foreign affairs, remain at their posts, and that President Barillas has appointed Emilio de Leon, a lawyer, to take the place of Anguino. It is now an accepted fact that General Mena will be appointed Minister of Finance.

ST. LOUIS, June 6.—A dispatch from the City of Mexico says advices were received there from the City of Guatemala to the effect that secret meetings are being held in the upper districts of Guatemala, at which revolutionary plans are being formulated for the overthrow of Barillas government. Some small garrisons at various towns are ready to join the separatists and many rich coffee planters are ready to secede and furnish money to start a new Republic. The people declare they will no longer endure Barillas' despotism. An early outbreak is expected.

Inter-State Commerce.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6.—Inter-State Commerce Commissioners Bragg, Knapp and Veasey arrived here this morning. The Commissioners have been taking testimony in Spokane, Washington, and Portland, Oregon, regarding the complaint of railroad companies that owing to the water competition by way of Cape Horn they are obliged to make lower rates for the Puget Sound region and Portland than for Spokane. The investigation having been concluded at Portland the Commissioners continued their inspection of overland lines to this city, where they will remain a few days before returning East.

Banished Jews.

LONDON, June 6.—A Moscow correspondent of the Daily News details an incident where two Jews were chained and herded with a convoy of criminals because they had no money to pay the expense of travel. The correspondent says he thinks there are many similar cases.

The first batch of six families of Jews expelled from Kieff have arrived at Buda-Pesth by railroad. They were conveyed virtually free. They give a heartrending recital of their treatment.

Chili Ships Seek Protection.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—The Bureau of American Republics furnishes the following: The steamers of the Chilean South American Steamship Company have been placed under the British flag, which is presumed to be a simulated sale to an English company pending the pacification of the country.

Sir John.

EARNSCIFFE, June 6.—At 6.30 A. M. Sir John McDonald is barely living. OTTAWA, June 6.—11.25—Sir John McDonald was still sinking rapidly at 11.25 o'clock this morning. He is now unconscious and the doctors concur in the opinion that life will be extinct before 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Tupper Censured.

OTTAWA, June 6.—The debate on the motion of Laurence, censuring Sir Charles Tupper, High Commissioner in England for participating in the recent elections, was continued and a final vote resulted in the government being sustained by a majority of 21.

Brewer Suicides.

SUTTER CREEK (Cal.), June 6.—L. Rabolt, proprietor of the Sutter Creek brewery, committed suicide this morning by hanging himself. Deceased was a German well known and highly esteemed throughout the county.

Fiendish Tramps.

WATERLOO (Iowa.), June 5.—Yesterday afternoon Joseph Brannon aged 19, while at work for a farmer living near Washburn, ten miles south of this city, was alone, three tramps called at the house in the absence of the family and demanded something to eat. Brannon refused the request telling them of the absence of the family. The refusal angered the tramps and they assaulted the lad, throwing him to the ground and castrating him. Brannon's cries frightened the scoundrels before they could complete their work and they escaped, leaving their victim in an unconscious condition. When Brannon regained consciousness two hours later, he harnessed a horse and drove to Gilbertville where he gave the alarm. An accurate description of the men was given and the Sheriff and posse are now in pursuit. The wretches undoubtedly will be lynched if caught.

Boy Drowned.

YUBA CITY (Cal.), June 6.—Last evening Fred Grant, 14 years old, and two other boys were bathing in a pond about two miles below town. Grant ventured too far and slid down the bank into ten feet of water. His companions could do nothing, and as he was unable to swim he was drowned. The body was recovered after several hours. A coroner's inquest this morning found a verdict according to the facts.

LOUIS, June 6.—Owen Miller, President of the Musicians Benefit Association, has written a letter to the Secretary of War asking that the permission given the Jefferson Barracks Cavalry Depot Band to furnish the musical program during the racing season here be withdrawn. BOSTON, June 6.—The steamer Taramung, which left Newcastle, N. S. W., May 30, bound for Melbourne, at which port she was due June 2 has not been heard from since she left Newcastle, and fears are entertained that she foundered during a gale off Cape Gable. Steamers have been sent out to ascertain if possible the fate of the Taramung.

SYNDICATE BUYING SILVER.

German Cruisers Coaling For Chili.

Whiskey Trust Wiggling For Gillson.

Silver Trust.

NEW YORK, June 6.—The Evening Sun says: For several days past there has been animated trading in silver bullion certificates upon the stock exchange. Prices, however, ruled steady around 98 cents per ounce, and has seemed, in Wall Street parlance, to have been "pegged" at that figure. It was rumored in Wall Street this morning that a large French syndicate had been formed to purchase this entire stock of silver. The syndicate, it was said, was represented in this country by the banking house, Heidebach, Yeckelheimer & Co. The head of the syndicate in Europe is thought to be the house of Thorsch & Co. of Vienna. It was said that Heidebach, Yeckelheimer & Co. hold about 3,000,000 ounces of the stock represented by receipts of the Mercantile Trust Co., which last night were 5,436,553 ounces.

As the needs of the syndicate, which proposes to purchase about 5,000,000 ounces have not yet been filled silver will not yet be withdrawn from the Mercantile Trust Company. If this were done the shortage in the supply would become at once apparent and the price would advance. The plan of the syndicate seems to be about as follows: It thought the stock of silver held in New York represents a large part of the floating supply. Last year England held a large stock of silver, but it has since been sent to Japan, India and China. The whole production of this country is used by the government in meeting its legal requirements for coinage and by the arts. Hence if Europe needs any more silver the syndicate controlling practically the larger part of the floating supply will be in position to dictate the price at which it will part with it. Moreover, as election time approaches, it is thought the West will renew the silver agitation and another effort be made in the next Congress to put through a free coinage bill.

Silver went up to 120 last year on the expectation of free coinage, and if the bill should become a law this year it will undoubtedly go to that figure again. The third point that the syndicate is said to be calculating upon is that the recent and present troubles in Europe will force the gold standard countries to adopt a bi-metallic standard. During the Baring panic in November last the Bank of England was forced to become a borrower from the Bank of France to the amount of $3,000,000. The Bank of France was able to advance this sum only on account of its ability through its charter to pay out silver as well as gold when its notes were presented for payment.

Whiskey Trust Wiggling.

CHICAGO, June 6.—Effort was made in the Federal Court to-day to have quashed the indictments against G. C. Gillson, ex-secretary of the Whiskey Trust, his attorney arguing there are no federal statutes governing the case. Judge Blodgett took the case under advisement and will make his decision known on Monday.

The structure is one of the most beautiful churches of Europe.

A PIONEER PIE-MAKER.

IN CALIFORNIA When the Only Fruit Was Dried Apple.
J. K. Griffith of Placerville, Cal., is responsible for the following bit of information published by the St. Louis Globe-Democrat: "There has been some talk lately of the first pie-maker in California. Many an old California miner who worked in El Dorado county in the early fifties remembers Mrs. Wakefield's dried apple pies. She came across the plains and started in almost as soon as she reached Hangtown, as it was then called, at the business of pie-making. Dried apples were sent around Cape Horn from New York in clipper ships. These she bought in bags and converted into pies, baking them in wide, deep tins. She was never able to supply the demand, although she charged $2 apiece for them. She opened a restaurant, and her favorite plan was to sell a quarter of one of these pies and a cup of coffee for a dollar. Mrs. Wakefield's pies became noted, and when any miner came down to Hangtown with his gold-dust he was never satisfied until he had eaten his fill of her apple pies and carried one or two home with him. She cleared up several thousand dollars in a few months. Other pioneers recollect Mrs. Wakefield for her literary capacity. She contributed very good poetry to the nearest daily newspaper, which was then published at Sacramento."

At about that time Milt Elstner was proprietor of the El Dorado Hotel in Hangtown, and charged $3 for a square meal, with dessert, which was rice pudding in three styles, and if taken alone cost for plain, 75 cents; with molasses, $1, and with brandy peaches, $2; and the bill of fare closed thus: "Payable in advance. Gold scales on the end of the bar."

How Stupidity May Be Accounted For.

Some people, born apparently with heads upon their shoulders, are so abnormally stupid that the wonder is as to how they came to be born at all. Of little use to anybody else they are of small value to themselves. The grey matter in their brains would seem to be compressed within the smallest possible compass. Strange as it may seem, science is now developing the fact that that is exactly what is the matter with them. The successful operation by a Paris surgeon upon the skull of an eight-year-old girl whose brain had ceased to develop at an early age, owing to the premature coalescence of the bones of the skull in infancy, is attracting European interest. The surgeon removed some of the small bones of the skull and thus relieved the pressure upon the child's brain. Within twenty-four hours it began to grow in sensibility and intelligence, and in eight days the scalp wound was healed; and now the operation, its results, and the wide field it opens up for speculation as to what may in the future be accomplished by attending to infants' heads, are subjects which the medical journals of Europe are discussing. Those of our own Eastern States have made the discovery that America is ahead as usual. An operation exactly parallel to this was performed in Cincinnati some months ago upon a much younger child, and with results completely successful. The New York Evening Post learns that one of the hospitals of that city is to be credited with an earlier operation of a somewhat opposite nature. A housemaid was so stupid as to be discharged from her place, and naturally enough she went to visit her sister who worked in a hospital. Her severe headaches attracted the attention of the house physicians, one of whom, in examining her head, found that the bones of the skull had never knitted together. The New York physicians went to work and succeeded in closing the aperture, and with such excellent results, says the Post, that the girl "assumed her proper brightness and returned to her former service, where she became one of the most accomplished of housemaids." It only seems reasonable to assume from these operations that like troubles may afflict a great many people whose stupidity is a marvel to all who know them. When we speak of a dull man being "without brains," we may be saying that which is exactly true. Some neglect in infancy may have resulted in compressing the brain in an abnormal way, and hence it may very well be that people are stupid in spite of themselves and in defiance of anything education is capable of doing for them. Their brains are in a condition of arrested development, and they themselves are objects of pity rather than fit subjects of ridicule.

The census statistics on insanity furnish an interesting study for the philanthropist and tax-payer. In this country the ratio to the whole population of insane persons in public institutions is 1.46 to every 1000, distributed according to geographical divisions as follows: North Atlantic, 36,595 patients, a ratio of 2.10 to each 1000 of the population; South Atlantic, 11,288 patients, a ratio of 1.27; North Central, 28,690 patients, a ratio of 1.28; South Central, 7769 patients, a ratio of .71, and Western, 6820 patients, a ratio of 2.25. The greatest ratio of insane persons treated to the population is that of California, 3.8 per 1000.

"It is not the work but the worry which kills," says Miss Brackett, in an essay in Harper's Magazine. That is an oft repeated truth, but still we worry and make our work thereby twice as laborous. Rest is not nearly so essential as we have been taught to believe. The most energetic and hard-worked often go to pieces because they suddenly rest. The need for busy men is not less work, but better method, and moral strength and resolution to let the other fellow do the worrying.

The telegraph gives us daily a long list of business failures. Is this a result of the McKinley bill which was to make the land flow with milk and honey.—Elko Independent.
No, the GAZETTE thinks not. It is more probably owing to the disaster of electing a Democratic Congress, and the fear it will upset all the good derived from the passage of the McKinley bill.

KISSED BY A GODDESS.

A Queer Old Superstition Regarding the Washington Monument.

The Washington monument leans against the blue sky, a great white shaft, and it towers nearly two hundred feet above the capitol dome, which stands on a hill about a mile away. The Goddess of Liberty is of bronze. She weighs fourteen thousand pounds and she stands erect on a great bronze globe on the cap of the dome, measuring nineteen and one-half feet from her toes to the tips of the feathers which crown her head.

She is a woman of wonderful beauty, and as a Pennsylvania railroad train carries the statesman out of Washington it goes around a part of the city in such a way that the traveler looking from the window sees this great figure of the statue of Liberty coming nearer and nearer to the Washington monument, until at last the two are in direct line with his eye, and the great goddess forms a black silhouette against the pure white of the monument.

This view of the monument, says the Philadelphia Press, has to be caught on a train going at the rate of forty miles an hour. There are a number of car tracks just at the point where it becomes visible, and a passing freight car will shut it out. It can only be seen for a second, and only one time, per hour, in a dozen trips. Public men leaving the capitol on missions keep their eyes glued on the windows, and if they are lucky enough to catch the combination they expect to find their missions successful. If not, some of them feel the superstitious dread of failure assured, and it is strange how many times they are correct.

When Hansbrough went home to seek for a reelection to congress he kept his eye glued on the goddess from the time the train left the station, but just as he was about to see her kiss the monument a freight car rushed in and the moment passed. He went to Dakota and failed to get his election. The last time he left was to make his fight for the senatorship. But I will let him tell the story himself.

Said he: "I watched the goddess as we left the depot. The trucks were full of freight cars and I feared I should miss it. Senator Farwell was beside me and he also kept his eyes toward the capitol. As we went out of the city freight cars increased, and as we neared the point where the two came together the track was full of them. I kept my eye on the window, however, and I just caught a view of the goddess against the monument between the cars of a passing train. I was leaning over and watching closely as I did so, and when the two came together I excitedly clapped one hand against the other, saying: 'I've got it!' and nearly scared the wits out of an old woman who sat in front of me and who must have thought I was crazy."

"Well, I went out to Dakota and secured my election. I don't, of course, believe that the monument and the goddess had much to do with it, but Charley Farwell, who failed to see them, went out to Illinois for the same purpose and got left."

IMAGINARY HUNGER.

Strange Influence of a Watch Upon a Man's Appetite.

I was engaged during the morning in preparing part of an interesting chapter in my new work. The one, in fact, which deals with the origin and development of the bonnet, says a writer in the Boston Post. I had got as far as the head-dress worn by the Athenian matrons to the theater, and was naturally much engrossed with the work, when an inward monitor, in a still, small, but yet unmistakable voice suggested "lunch." I looked at my watch—it said three o'clock.

Now, I always take luncheon at 1:30, never, in any emergency, later than two. But three o'clock! I felt ill and faint. I started for the club feeling like Rip Van Winkle, when he came home from his lunch twenty years late. I passed a friend; I tried to slink by without his noticing, but I could see he looked upon me sadly and askance as if I were in some way a stricken wether of the flock. I went in and sat down. Somehow everybody else seemed to be late. I looked at the clock, it was exactly 3:03. I looked at my watch again. It still said three o'clock. It had stopped during the night. Now mark the result. I instantly recovered from the starvation from which I had been suffering, and began to converse in my usual cheerful and intelligent manner. But I did not mention the extraordinary behavior of my watch, which I now reveal only in strict confidence.

Disease from Clothing.

There is probably no custom which lends itself more readily to the propagation of infectious disease than the household manufacture of articles of clothing. Every physician whose duty calls him to the homes of the working poor must have been struck with this fact. In many cases it could not well be otherwise under existing conditions. The two or three available apartments are occupied by a fairly numerous family, and a separate workroom would be regarded not unreasonably as a needless concession to personal comfort. Thus it happens that the same chamber in a "sweaters' tenement, nay, the same bed, often contains the sufferer from scarlatina or measles and the coat and vest which next week will adorn the window of some tailor. Disinfectant? Probably not, unless under pressure of some external authority, for the class of workers to whom we have referred too often exhibit a surprising ignorance or carelessness with regard to the properties of contagion.—N. Y. Ledger.

British Maps.

British fondness for territory is illustrated very graphically in a well-known pocket atlas published by an English firm. British possessions are all printed in a brilliant shade of red, but the world is a large place, and even the numerous colonies of the little island fail to make as great a show as was desired, so Great Land, the great continent of rock and ice lying north of the arctic circle, and Graham Land, a similar tract south of the antarctic circle, were also printed in a rosy hue. These desolate wastes are undefined and unexplored, and of about as much use as the milky way. Certainly no nation will dispute Britannia's right to paint them red if she wants to.

MEDIEVAL LONDON.

The Tortuous and Broken Perspective of Its Ancient Streets.

Who can rebuild before the eye of the mind a single ordinary dwelling of the vanished London of the middle of the thirteenth century? It was a dwarfish, squat structure, says a writer in Atlantic, of such crazy unsubstantiality that, with a stout iron crook and five strong cords, provided by the ward, it might be pulled down, and dragged off speedily in case of fire; a structure of one-story jutting over a low ground floor, with another jut of eaves above, its front bearing an old resemblance to the back of a couple of huge stairs, and the whole a most rickety, tumble-down top-heavy, fantastical thing. Chimneys were fairly in vogue then, so it had them, squat, square, wide mouthed, faced with white plaster, red tiles, or gray pebble-work. Red tiles covered its roof; its walls were of rough plastered planks, or a wooden framework filled with a composite of straw and clay, buttressed with posts, and crossed this way and that with supporting beams—the whole daubed over with whitewash, of which the weather soon made gray-rash. In front was a stairway, sometimes covered, sometimes not, or a step-ladder set slantwise against the wall, for an entrance to the upper story. The doorways were narrow and low, the windows also, and the latter, darkened with overbrows of wooden shutters, propped up from beneath, and sticking out like long, slender awnings, were further darkened by sashes of parchment, linen, or thin-shaven horn, for glass came from Flanders, and was costly and rare.

Such, joint and seam and tile being loosened into crack and cranny and crevice everywhere, was the dwelling of the London citizen as the eye might see it in the middle of the thirteenth century. Multiply that dwelling into a tortuous and broken perspective of like buildings, some joined by party-walls, some with spaces between, all pent-roofed or gable-peaked, heavy-eaved, stub-chimneyed, narrow-latticed, awning-shuttered, staircased, post-bressed, beam-crossed, dusky-red-roofed, dingy-white-walled, and low under the overhanging vastness of the sky, and you have an ancient London street.

CONCERNING GLASS EYES.

Not Always to Be Detected When Seen—The Trade in Them.

"Good glass eyes come high," said an oculist recently to a Buffalo News man. "Cost a big price, do they?" "Yes, the good ones do."

"Then there is a good deal of difference?" "Oh, yes. They range all the way from fifty cents to fifty dollars."

"Is there such a big demand for them?" "Larger than most people suppose. The fact is that many people get along so well with a glass eye that not one person in ten suspects the fact."

"Some of our friends may be wearing one of those solid visual organs and we do not know it?" "Precisely. I'll bet that several people in this city with whom you are acquainted have always escaped your attention."

"Tell me something about the business, doctor."

"In the first place the greater share of glass eyes, so called, are not glass. The best quality of artificial eyes is manufactured in America by a process that is kept absolutely secret. These are the lightest and best, and will last the longest. The Germans also make a fine artificial eye. The best eyes are made of stone. The German article is cheaper than the American. The veining in the foreign eyes is not so well marked."

"What makes the trade profitable?" "I'll tell you. One-eyed men are likely to be rather scarce, and one would think that having once stocked up they would buy no more. But this is not the case. An artificial eye gets to be a nuisance after it has been on duty two or three months. Another one has to be purchased. This explains the reason for the lively trade in these articles. There'll always be a trade in them, and a good one, too."

"How is it we don't notice a glass eye in some men?" "Because they know enough to keep still about the matter, and wear the best eyes obtainable. In this way if you notice anything at all peculiar about their optics you imagine they have a squint or are cross-eyed."

PAUPERS OF FINLAND.

The Horrible Custom of Selling Them Is Nearly Abolished.

A year ago, says the Helsingfors correspondent of the London News, I mentioned the peculiar mode Finland has of dealing with its paupers and aged, and I am glad to be able to say that a great deal has since been done to get the inhuman practice of selling the poor creatures by auction abolished. The government has been awakened to the fact that the practice is barbarous and entirely out of accord with the otherwise cultivated institutions of Finland. An instance of the dreadful manner in which these auctions are held may be recorded. A very old woman, sick and weary of life, almost too feeble to exist longer, had been sold to a farmer. Her term was up last Wednesday, when she had to be resold. It was an exceedingly cold day and a fearful snowstorm was raging. The poor old creature knew that she could not live over the night, so she asked her owner if he would allow her to die in her corner, where she would be as quiet as possible and give no trouble and not eat anything. She begged hard, but her request was not granted, and she was sent out to the auction. The price paid for her was very low, poor thing, for every one knew that she could not last long. After the sale was over and the buyers were preparing to take home their purchases the old woman was found dead. She had kept her word. She had been no trouble to anyone, but had died without a murmur.

A Pioneer's Experience With Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"I am a pioneer in this county, having been here 30 years. Four years ago my little son Eliery became blood-poisoned by impure virus in vaccination. His arm swelled terribly, causing great agony; physicians said the arm must be amputated, and even then his recovery would be doubtful. One day I read about a blood purifier, new to me, and was surprised to learn that it was prepared by C. I. Hood, with whom I used to go to school in Chelsea, Vt. I decided to have my boy try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and was much gratified when it seemed to help him. He continued to grow better as we gave him the Sarsaparilla, and having used 3 bottles is now entirely cured. As Hood's Sarsaparilla has accomplished such wonderful results, I recommend it all I possibly can." JESSE M. SLEEPER, Upper Lake, Lake Co., Cal.

I recognized in it an herb the Mexicans used to give us in the early 50's for bowel troubles. (I came to Cal. in 1850), and I knew it would help me and it has. For the first time in years I can sleep well and my system is regular. The old Mexican herbs in this remedy are a certain cure in constipation and bowel troubles." Ask for

THE COINAGE OF GOLD AND SILVER.

The Question Ably Handled by a Gentleman Who Has Given It Much Thought.

It will thus be seen that it is the statute that makes gold and silver coin the measure of value in settlement of all public and private dues. Debit and credit balances must be liquidated, whether between nations or individuals, and the methods of such settlements devolves upon government. So obviate the possibility of disastrous results from unlimited coinage of silver, predicted by the advocates of a single standard of gold coinage, to wit: The driving of gold out of the country, we might limit silver coinage to the production of American silver. If the entire production of American silver mines were coined, it would not exceed the demand. It could be used as a basis for continuing the national banking system in place of retired bonds, thereby securing a uniform and convenient currency, and available at all times for government to redeem the banking circulation under such conditions as Congress might prescribe. In the discussion of the policy of unlimited coinage of both gold and silver bullion, one fact should not be lost sight of. Practical experience should have weight in financial, as well as in mechanical and scientific affairs.

In no period in the history of our government has American silver coin of standard weight and fineness ever been at a discount, until its demonitization in 1873. For over forty years prior to that time, the American silver and gold dollar were of equal value, and it is believed that unlimited coinage of both metals on the same basis will not displace the gold dollar by placing the silver dollar on an equality with it. Another fact seems to emphasize the evil effects resulting from the demonitizing Silver Act of 1873. Every retail merchant on the Pacific coast, whose sales were small and were paid for mostly in silver, had to stand a discount of from three to six percent, on his silver coin when he paid for his goods. Every employee had to take his month's pay in rolls of silver coin, and when he paid his monthly bills, had to discount his month's wages at 5 per cent. Before this Act was passed, for at least two generations, a dollar in silver would buy as much as a dollar in gold.

Hitherto in the discussion of this question, the term “free coinage” has been used by both the parties to the controversy. The term used herein is “unlimited coinage” of both gold and silver bullion, with such modifications as to confining the coinage of silver to the products of American mines, as Congress might prescribe. This article does not advocate free coinage of either gold or silver bullion, but unlimited coinage of both metals on payment of seigniorage covering cost of maintaining and operating the mints. This cost is easily ascertainable by the Director of the Philadelphia Mint. Seigniorage for coining money is a government prerogative and should be exercised by it in providing for a supply of currency for facilitating the commercial transactions of the country. The cost of establishing and operating the mints has to be met either by taxation or by a charge on the bullion deposited. A merchant or miner depositing bullion in the mint cannot complain if charged the cost of converting his commodity into lawful money. The exercise of the prerogative of coining gold and silver bullion into lawful money exchangeable for all public or private dues by the government is primarily the exercise of a public function. Secondly it is performing a private service to the producer or owner of a valuable commodity, who has no more claim for free service than the owner or producer of wheat to have it manufactured into flour without paying toll to the miller. The owners of silver or gold bullion do not demand free coining of their product, but that as governments have adopted the two metals for the purposes of coining into money to facilitate commercial transactions, they ask that each shall be coined into money on payment of seigniorage. The silver legislation of the late Congress reduces silver bullion from a four million money basis per month to that of a four million commodity basis of credit per month. In the former the government obtained a seigniorage of about sixteen per cent, where by the latter the government receives only the value of the last certificates and what it can make as a silver bullion broker. That the suspension of coining 44,000,000 of silver per month into lawful money and the substitution of purchasing silver as a commodity to the value of 44,500,000 per month and issuing silver certificates thereon has not met with the success its promoters claimed pending the consideration of the measure, goes without saying. But the act is still in force and cannot be changed until Congress assemble in December. In the meantime any plan for relieving commercial depression which may be evolved will no doubt receive due consideration by the legislative department of the national government when it convenes.

In a preceding part of this paper it has been stated that American coin when exported partook of the character of a valuable commodity. Again it is here stated that the stamp of the government upon its coins is all that makes it a basis of settlement of balances between citizens. Without that stamp 412½ grains standard silver and 25.8 grains standard gold, each valued at one dollar are not legal tender in settlement of contracts based upon lawful money any more than are 2 pounds of cast-steel. For commercial convenience governments have assumed the function of providing a uniform currency as a standard of values. They have selected certain metals which experience has demonstrated are best adapted to accomplish the end desired. Gold, silver, nickel and copper are the metals selected by commercial nations, and the function of “coining money and regulating the value thereof” out of these metals is universally recognized. Each government prescribes the denomination, weight and fineness of each metal; the device upon the face of its respective coins, and declares it money, and that the value stamped thereon shall constitute a legal tender in payment of dues whether public or private. Without this stamp, as has already been stated, no one would be obliged to receive it in payment of debts.

(To be Continued.)

The Royal Pass Company will appear in Reno on Tuesday, June 9th.

FOURTH OF JULY.

The Citizens Met Last Night and Decided to Celebrate.

A good crowd assembled at the Justice Court room last evening to discuss Fourth of July matters. Dr. Fredrick was elected temporary chairman and Morris Davis as secretary. John Sunderland thought that Reno should, by all means, celebrate the coming Fourth. He said that we had the material here for getting up a fine celebration, and he for one was heartily in favor of having a good time on the Fourth.

C. A. Thurston indorsed what Mr. Sunderland said.

John Boynton also thought Reno should not be behind her neighbors in patriotic sentiment on that day.

C. A. Norcross explained the position of the Reno Guards. He said that they had already accepted an invitation to go to Virginia and thought that if the people of Reno would give up the idea of celebrating this year that next year they would get up one of the grandest celebrations ever seen in the State. He said there were young men enough in the Reno Guard to put a shoulder to the wheel and insure success. He said the company had bought about $300 worth of new uniforms and was in a very prosperous condition, but that their efforts to keep up a good military company had never been appreciated by the business men of the town; that many of the young men who belonged to the company found it difficult to get from their duties in the stores in which they were employed, to drill. He thought if the business men would show a little leniency to their clerks it would be better all around.

Mr. Sunderland then made a motion that it be the sense of the meeting that Reno should celebrate on the Fourth. The motion prevailed and the meeting adjourned to next Monday night at the same place, at 8 o'clock, when the several committees will be appointed.

COMMERCIAL CLASS DANCE.

Given by the Graduates of '91—A Social and Financial Success.

The dance given at the Pavilion last night by the Commercial Class of '91 was, as the GAZETTE predicted it would be, a decided success, socially and financially, and reflects credit upon the business qualifications of the young gentlemen graduates who managed it. They showed excellent judgment in placing the admission at a price that enabled them to secure the very best of music, and the liberal patronage proved the public appreciated the treat. About fifty couples were present, giving the hall an animated appearance, but not crowding it uncomfortably. The evening was pleasant for dancing and just warm enough to create an appreciation for the lemonade booth conducted by the young lady graduates. In fact, the distinguishing feature of the entire class shows a commendable development of business tact, a trait rarely found in college graduates. You see on the right track, ladies and gentlemen, and if you cultivate the same talent through life you will never be troubled about the bread and butter question. The ladies looked charming last evening in their becoming summer costumes, and the ball-room looked cheerful and attractive in sequence. In fact, it was the first time for some months that the costumes did not remind one of a funeral. The music was by Fredrick & Barlow's band, and inspired the tripping of the light fantastic until 1 o'clock this morning.

HOTEL EXPERIENCE.

As Related by Visitors to Salt Lake City During a Rush.

D. L. Bliss and wife returned from their trip east this morning, going as far as Green river in Wyoming. They were in Salt Lake City on Wednesday at the opening of the new hotel Knutsford, and were among the first to register at that new extravaganza. Mr. Bliss and wife left the hotel to make a call and on their return found the place undergoing a public inspection, and over two thousand visitors roaming through the house. His rooms had been left unlocked and were invaded by the mob who inspected all the loose articles of travel baggage and walked off with a $60 overcoat of his, which he failed to recover.

THE ECLIPSE

Occurred on Time and Was Viewed by the Scientists of Reno.

As predicted by the GAZETTE last evening, the eclipse of the sun occurred on time and well repaid every one that borrowed a bit of smoked glass to view it with. It was a sort of one-horse affair, but fulfilled its mission in verifying the predictions of astronomers. W. R. Chamberlain caught it at its first contact and made observations until its close. He furnished each guest with a smoked glass to look at it as a relief for breakfast. William says it came high, but there is nothing too good for the Riverside borders.

As Others See Us.

The Oroville (Cal.) Mercury, in commenting upon the prospects of the Air Line Railroad project of Nevada, says: The Bulletin's surmises and the Sagebrush guesses are undoubtedly in the right direction and will ultimately prove correct. When a road comes in via Beckwith, it will suddenly open one of the grandest mineral, timber, dairying and grazing sections. Business from Beckwith to San Francisco will pay immensely. As we said the other day, thousands of summer tourists will throng our splendid mountain resorts when that road is built. We simply desire to hurry up its construction.

A Leaping Bicycle.

Joe Zeigler relates that a man on a bicycle turned from Virginia Street into Commercial Row last night and in front of Martin's store, ran entirely over a horse in a delivery wagon, landing on the other side and stunning the rider. Joe is a reliable man, but objects moving rapidly are very deceiving, and he says he can't tell how it was done because it was done so quick.

She—Smoking must certainly have its evils. He—Yes; the tobacco-bug will get empty occasionally. And then he goes to Marcus Fredrick's tobacco store and fills it up again.

L. Dolly raised four tons of potatoes from less than an acre of land last year which he sold for $50 per ton. Sierra Valley is not considered the best place in the State for “apuds” either; but where can the price be beaten?

The two children of August Roza of Hurleton, Butte county, who were lost early Tuesday morning, were found at Seward's Flat, ten miles from their home, Wednesday. They had been out about thirty hours when found. The youngest was a boy of six and the elder a girl of eight.

W. H. Hodgkin, recently of England, has purchased the Goodman vineyard of forty acres at Fresno, paying the sum of $50,000 in cash. Since the bargain was closed, the purchaser of the vineyard has refused $12,000 for this year's crop of grapes. And so it seems Joe Goodman has made a vineyard return him a fortune after many years.

A QUEER VISITOR.

As No Live Ones Appear They Get a Dead One.

The Detroit Free Press says: There is a fashionable school in that city where young ladies have a class in physiology. A few days ago one of the teachers entered the school-room during class hours, and said to the Principal: “He has come.” “Bring him in,” was the answer.

There was a gentle commotion in the school room, and the girls looked at each other with much interest. The advent of a masculine visitor was something unusual.

Soon the teacher returned, carrying in her arms something wrapped in a white cloth. She unfolded the package, which was bulky, and out sprang a large skeleton, neatly articulated. There was a murmur of surprise and a few suppressed screams, but one jolly girl, who expects to write M. D. after her name, exclaimed: “Isn't he just lovely?”

A HUMBOLDT STABLE.

A Fine String of Horses Started Off For Turf Honors.

A string of racers belonging to Williams & Lindsay of Winnemucca after a winter training at that point, was shipped to Salt Lake City on Thursday for entrance in the races there. The horses are Col. Derby and Chispa, 4-year-olds; Harry I and Derby, 3-year-olds; Alvord a 2-year old and The Jew. Chispa is the pride of the stable. They will take in the Montana circuit and return in time to attend the contests at the State Fair and Carson.

Big Creek Tramway.

The Reville of the 5th inst. says:

Four feet of snow has fallen at the Big Creek antimony mine the past week, consequently progress in erecting the Andruval tramway has been retarded.
